Dance of the Chains

The Living Art Project

January 7 at 7:30pm

Members Free Non Members $10

All the artwork and design used in the performance was inspired by artist Al Razza with the assistance of the performers and craftsmen who helped materialize The Living Art Project, which is a dramatization of Razza's painting titled Dance of the Chains.

Witness Razza's work come to life in a dramatic live performance. In Dance of the Chains, Razza celebrates freedom, but just not any freedom, female freedom. Here the shackles of time are shed, conventions altered, and freedom manifested. Watch as the chains of servitude are cast aside and the gears of the almighty machine release their energy. Witness as she breaks free to command her space, her life, and her destiny. Watch her destroy the bonds of her captivity and find her humanity.

Artist in Residence 2010

Shelley Parriott

Color Field Sculpture Plein Air Gallery

Dedication Ceremony
January 23 at noon

Join the artist, dignitaries, sponsors and visitors at noon on January 23, 2010 for the celebration of the Plein Air Gallery exhibition, Color Field Sculpture by Artist in Residence 2010, Shelley Parriott. The Color Field Sculpture, consists of colorful perforated steel sculptures, which have the appearance of mesh or sheer fabric. The sculptures will reflect in the Museum's pond and will provide a striking contrast to the water and tropical landscape. The public will have the chance to witness the creative installation process January 18 through 23, ask questions directly to the artist and assist with her vision. The Museum will also be partnering with five high schools whose art students will assist with the installation. Additional programming and tours will be available for the Plein Air Gallery through May 2010. AIR 2010 sponsors are Broward County Cultural Council, Funding Arts Broward and The Fresh Market.

Saturday Chautauquas

January 30 at 3:00pm

Poetry on Strings

Saturday Chautauqua is CSMART's version of the popular turn of the century traveling tent shows that included art exhibits, lectures and music "to improve and renew our ties to one another".

Members Free Non Members $10

Poetry, Puppetry & Book Signing

David Plumb and Pablo Cano journey to mirth, myth and wonder. Poems sing from tin cans, old guitars, springs, old shoes, mother of pearl buttons and neatly wired hearts. All is possible. A dragon appears with Fred Astaire and Matilda Hippo. Boring Boris is back. You remember him. Lolita Coffee Cup bows. We touch them all. Magic? Real? Poetry on Strings is one sweet dance. The authors will be signing their new book, Poetry on Strings, during the Chautauqua.
